

Sinclair
Broadcasting's
decision to force
their stations to
air an anti-Kerry
documentary days
before the election
is a clear example
of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the
public airwaves free
of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies
control the
airwaves, we get more of what's good
for the bottom line
and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something
produced at "News Central" far away,
it's more important
that we see real people from our own
communities and more
substantive news
about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions
show why we need to strengthen media
ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license
renewal process
needs to involve
more than a returned
postcard.

Further, Sinclair's
actions is further
proof as to why FCC
rules of the Fair Use Doctrine be re-implemented so as to give opposing views of issues in a fair way so both sides of issues can be discussed and
people can be able to make their own
decisions rather than be 'Programmed'
with one sided views
over the public
airwaves.

Thank you.
